AUSTRIANS FORCED TO HASTY RETREAT BEFORE CADORNA'S POWERFUL DRIVE ON ISONZO

Citizens Leave Adriatic Port, Taking With Them All Articles of Value, and Seek Refuge in Interior of Country

Heights Still Held by Enemy East of Gorizia Cut Off From Supplies—Haig's Troops Sweep Forward 2000 Yards on St. Julien-Poelcappelle Line

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28. Trieste is being evacuated. Its civilian population is deserting the town, at the order of the Austrian high command, according to the Zurich correspondent of Corriere d'Italia, whose dispatches were cabled to the Italian embassy here today.

Most of the citizens left yesterday, taking with them "all articles of value," the cable stated. They sought refuge in the interior of Austria.

Hourly the Italian offensive becomes more certain of a military decision, cable messages say. The Austrian troops in the sector dominated by Monte Santo are reported so far ahead of the Italians that no trace of them can be found except stacks of abandoned munitions, guns and food.

From Monte Santo many square miles of territory can be raked by the Italian artillery. No Austrian position in this zone can be held more than a few hours.

Monte Gabriele and Monte Daniele, northeast of Gorizia, are still held by the Austrians, but are isolated. No food or munitions can reach the beleaguered troops. The fall of these mountain forts is a matter of days, the cables say.

Emperor Carl spent the entire day of August 22 at the front with the Austrian high command and General Borozev. He saw Tarnovo captured and one fort on the Carso destroyed by the Italian bombardment. He left while the Italian troops were charging to victory.

Austrian papers admit the precarious position of their troops. The Lokal Anzeiger correspondent makes no effort to conceal the important advantages gained by the Italians.

HAIG'S TROOPS PLOW FORWARD 2000 YARDS AT LANGEMARCK

LONDON, Aug. 28. Lunging forward in the sea of mud left by yesterday's heavy rainstorms, the British advanced 2000 yards southeast of Langemarck (West Flanders front), the War Office announced today. The gain was made along the St. Julien-Poelcappelle road.

This gain followed heavy fighting. The attack was begun yesterday, when front lines were carried by storm. The British attacked in force both east and southeast of Langemarck. Apparently the assault was preceded by a feint toward the east of Ypres.

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—Except for a "small indentation," British assaults between Langemarck and the Butlers and Ypres road were "sangulantly defeated," today's official statement declared. The attacks were in two general moves, the second continuing into the night. The indentation in the German line was northeast of Frenenberg.

CHEERS GREET U. S. OFFER OF AID TO RUSSIA

President Wilson's Message Electrifies Moscow Conference at Night Session

DELEGATES FAR APART

By WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD MOSCOW, Aug. 28. President Wilson's message to the Russian conference electrified that assembly today. His promise that America would aid new Russia "with all moral and material power" was greeted with thunderous cheers.

The president's cable was received at midnight. The conference had labored for long hours before that. The great hall of the meeting was still as the tired delegates prepared to leave.

The message was read by Premier Kerensky amid a silence that bespoke eager attention. Then came a storm of cheering. Every delegate in the hall arose to his feet. The bedlam of sound continued for several minutes.

It was the first time since the conference assembled that there was any unanimity of action. Even the Cadet party members joined in the demonstration. Heretofore they have sat stolidly, almost glumly, applauding no speakers except those of their own party.

The chasm between these quiet Cadet forces and the Workers' and Soldiers' representatives was just as wide early today when the session concluded as it was in preceding meetings. The single point of unanimity between the two forces developed in the reading of President Wilson's message.

General Korniloff today added to his pessimistic picture of Russian conditions by saying: "Our railways are demoralized. By November the army will not be receiving supplies. As I read the statistics of production, munitions have failed 60 per cent in output in the last four months. A southwest-ern commander has telegraphed there is a broad famine there. With all these grave situations I believe the genius and the reason of the Russian people will save the country."

General Kaledin, leader of the Cossacks, spoke to the Russian conference immediately following Korniloff, and urged that his commander-in-chief's suggestions be carried out.

All of Moscow is guarded in a fashion reminiscent of the old days of autocracy. Cossacks patrol the city hall, where the conference meets. Admittance is guarded strictly. Uniforms are sprinkled everywhere.

TANGIBLE HELP OFFERED NEW REPUBLIC BY WILSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28. Extreme significance is attached in diplomatic circles to the message forwarded by President Wilson to the Russian National Council at Moscow. Brief as is the message, it contains an implication of immense importance as regards the prolongation of the war and the terms of peace when peace comes.

The President pledges Russia "every material and moral assistance" the people of the United States can extend. By material assistance he is taken to mean munitions of war and other supplies of all kinds necessary if Russia is again to become a great fighting force. By moral assistance the President means, according to the interpretation in diplomatic circles, not a mere approbation of efforts to effect a stable and democratic government, but tangible help in the form of financial credits.

WILSON REPLIES TO POPE'S PLAN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28. President Wilson's answer to the Pope's peace offer has been forwarded, the State Department announced this afternoon.

The completed draft was read to the members of the cabinet at this afternoon's meeting and immediately afterward was approved for publication tomorrow morning.

The answer was sent to London for transmission to the Pope by way of the British Government, which was the original medium of transfer.

The President's reply goes into great detail in discussing the Pope's proffer. The response, a long one, does not summarily dismiss the peace suggestion without careful review of its fundamental ideas advanced by the Pope and concurred in by the leading statesmen of the Allied countries.

Greatest secrecy surrounded all details, but it is known that the issue is left as from the start—quietly up to the German people for a decision as to steps necessary for consummating an end to the world struggle.

The President took the opportunity to clarify this Government's purpose in the war and lift them out of the confusion which endless discussion, both at home and abroad, has plunged them in. He tried to indicate the thought, and at the same time the resolution, of the American people in its willingness to make sacrifices for an end that will insure future peace.

Bell Official Asks Exemption for All Skilled Mechanics Employed

MANY APPEALS HEARD

Industrial Corporations Want Eligibles Employed by Them Freed From Service

After asserting that women cannot take the place of skilled mechanics, L. H. Kennard, vice president of the Bell Telephone Company, today informed Philadelphia Appeal Board No. 1 that of the 2358 male employees of the company who are subject to the draft in Pennsylvania exemptions which he asked for one-third of that number.

"We shall not ask for the exemption of men in the financial, clerical or administrative departments," said Mr. Kennard, "but must ask the help of the Government in order to keep the force intact. At present the Bell Telephone Company is doing a work that is done by military forces in foreign countries."

Outlining the work being done for the Government Mr. Kennard asserted that 120 men are at work on the telephone plant at the Wrightstown cantonment. "That is but one of the countless jobs we are doing. If we are to continue the Government must exempt the skilled men who cannot be replaced. Nine per cent of our male employees are either in the service or headed that way, but we must not permit all of them to enter."

INDUSTRIAL EXEMPTIONS CLAIMED

The board held its first public meeting and representatives of more than twenty big industrial concerns were present and presented information in regard to the number of exemptions they would demand.

The meeting was held in the board room of the Provident Trust Company, Fourth and Chestnut streets.

William M. Irish, of the Atlantic Refining Company, informs the board that out of 7000 workers employed in the company's plants exemptions would be asked for 150. "These men," said Mr. Irish, "are men who cannot be replaced without a serious loss to the company and a curtailment of our output. Since the United States entered the war we have been doing everything possible to increase our output, but the drafting of men who are employed as pumpers and in other positions that require long training would serve to reduce our output."

S. W. Traylor, president of the Traylor Shipbuilding Company, which is affiliated with the Emergency Fleet Corporation, said that 100 men out of 500 employed in the company's plant at Bristol cannot be replaced.

Representatives of industrial establishments who appeared before the board today, while pointing out that their plants are virtually part of the Government system, displayed a gratifying spirit of co-operation by keeping their requests down to a fraction of the employees liable to conscription.

A representative of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation, Camden, directed attention to the fact that the plant is twice hit by the draft because about 1000 of the employees live in Philadelphia, so that the force is drawn upon by two cities. He asserted that the plant is 5000 men short of the number that could be used at present. Incidentally, he revealed that when the Government commandeered the yard work was suspended on the battleship Idaho in order to permit greater speed in turning out destroyers. The speaker also took the stand that the ship yard is now really a part of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, and as such should have its employees exempt from other Government service. He said he was not prepared to give figures as to how many of the employees subject to the draft would be considered indispensable, but indicated that it would be a large percentage.

Approximately a hundred decisions will be handed down tomorrow by Appeal Board No. 1. They will be the first in Pennsylvania. From tomorrow on, Chairman John Caldwell predicted, decisions will be given rapidly, as it is realized that all appeals must be cleaned up before the new National Army is called out. Appeal Board No. 2, sitting in the Federal Building, received more than a thousand pleas for exemption up to 6 o'clock this afternoon, and claims are still coming in rapidly.
